EMMA CARROLL FREEMAN WATKINS who was always so patient with the effort

Copyright 1986 Vincent Watkins 256 Wythe Creek Road Poquoson Virginia The County of York began its existence in 1634 as one of the eight original shires commonly called counties, with the name of Charles River. It was bounded on the south by Elizabeth City, Warwick River on the southwest, and James City on the west. The normer boundary at the beginning was indefinite. The name was changed to York in March of 1642/3.

As the Colony expanded, York County was settled at the upper end by the overflow of planters from James City and Martin's Hundred; the lower section of the County was peopled by settlers from Elizabeth City. So rapid was the development that by 1635 some of these planters had already moved across the York River and established plantations there.

During this period York County was divided into five Colonial Parishes:

- 1. New Poquoson (Charles Parish) -- at the lower end from Back River and the Old Poquoson northward to Wormeley's creek.
  - 2. York Parish -- from Wormeley's Creek to Morgan's Creek.
  - Chiskiack Parish from Morgan's Creek to Queen's Creek.
  - 4. Marston Parish -- from Queen's Creek to Scimino Creek.
  - 5. Middle Plantation (Bruton) -- the settlement between Queen's Creek and Archer's Hope Creek (College Creek), being partly in James City County...

Middle Plantation was in the beginning included in Chiskiack Parish.

In 1706 York and Hampton Parishes were combined to form Yorkhampton Parish.
